Story Map Contest

At the 2023 Tribal GIS Conference, we'll be assembling a digital display of the very best maps and other displays that Indian Country has to offer, and we want you to be a part of it. GIS professionals from all disciplines within the industry are encouraged to submit their work for display in our Story Map contest. We encourage you to show off your best recent story map projects, from experimental techniques to finished products. Each year we learn a lot from the amazing work of our colleagues, and in 2023 we'll be looking to continue that trend.

Conference registration is required. To ensure your entry inclusion, story map URL's must be received by Friday, April 14.

The Details:

- Submit applicable information to gcouch@tribalgis.com by April 14, which includes the following information if not published within the story map:
  o Story Map Title
  o Story Map Author Name & Title
  o Tribe/Company/Organization Name(s)
- This contest requires access to ArcGIS Online (AGOL) to create a story map. Tribal GIS Members have access to AGOL, please contact us for information about requesting access.
- Conference registration and attendance is required.
- Check with Tribal GIS to ensure your story map link is received.
    - You will have the option to include a URL link when registering online (255 maximum characters).
    - You may also email your story map URL link to events@tribalgis.com.
- Judging will be conducted on April 25 through April 27 at noon by the NTGISC conference committee and other professionals.
- 1st, 2nd & 3rd places will be given for Best Story Map Submission. Winners will be announced during the closing session on Thursday, November 21. You do not have to be present to win.

Please contact Garet Couch (gcouch@tribalgis.com) with any questions.

All work must be original. Non-monetary prizes will be offered to winners.